WHITE HORSE INN - The Story

Josepha, owner of the 'White Horse Inn', is a young and very charming widow—particularly so to Leopold, her head waiter. But Leopold is only the latest in a long line of head waiters, and Josepha's eyes are on Sutton, the English solicitor. When Grinkle, a wealthy underwear manufacture from Oldham arrives with his daughter Ottoline, Leopold sees his chance. However, Sutton represents Grinkle's arch-enemy and business rival, Smith, whose son also arrives at the 'White Horse'. Everything is sorted out eventually, of course —

When the Show was first performed in London at the Coliseum in 1931, it immediately took London by storm and played for 651 performances. Since then it has been revived at the Coliseum, converted into an ice-spectacular and played by innumerable societies.

ANN MILLER

We have suffered a heavy blow during the past year by the death of Ann Miller who, six years ago joined us as Rehearsal Accompanist. She carried out this office with an effectiveness and charm that raised the musical standard of the Group and her personal coaching of individual principals launched a number of players to a fuller enjoyment of our musicals.

She was the organist of the Macclesfield Spiritualist Church for well over 30 years and was also associated with Macclesfield Amateur Variety Artists for many years.

A lady of kindness and understanding she endeared herself to all who came in contact with her. She will be much missed and the Society is poorer for her passing.

KEITH BUCKLER

During August, the Group suffered a grievous loss in the untimely passing of Keith Buckler. As Membership Secretary for a number of years he carried out his office with a meticulous appreciation of his duties. Physically a big man, he was yet gentle and modest and his appreciation of individual members' problems helped many to integrate into the many facets of a musical play society.

All his colleagues will miss him deeply and he set a standard for his office which will be difficult to equal. To Dagmar and his children we offer our sincere condolences and profound sympathy at the loss of a fine husband and father and we should like them always to remember in what high regard he was held by all his friends in the society.
